ACCORDING TO THE CENSUS REPORTS just published, the population of Hathboro is 963 an increase of 140 over 10 years ago, when it was 823. This slow growth can be attributed to poor poor train service. Hathboro as a place of residence has many advantages including water, gas, electricity, rail shade, sidewalks and macadamized streets, yet it is difficult to induce outsiders to come here to live.

THE PUBLIC SPIRIT HAS BEEN endeavoring for the past several months to have the postal authorities issue a mail car on the Rapid Transit system to fly between Doylestown, Hathboro and Philadelphia and intervening post offices. As it was necessary to apply to the authorities in Washington, Hon. Irving P. Wanger has had the matter in charge and has given it his prompt and careful attention. The following letters received this week, one from Mr. Wanger, and one from the Assistant Postmaster General, addressed to Mr. Wanger, are self explanatory.

Dear Mr. Robinson:
With the determined effort of the Postmaster General to reduce expenditures in the Post Office Department, it is hopeless for the present to consider the change in your mail service as requested in December last. But I shall be glad to go over the matter with you after the adjournment of Congress and see whether your wants cannot be reasonably met the another way.

While my official tenure will be ended March 4th, I trust my usefulness to the great constituency that has so richly honored me will continue notwithstanding.

With kindest regards,
Yours very sincerely,
IRVING P. WANGER.
Mr. Penrose Robinson,
Hathboro, Pa.

Hon. Irving P. Wanger,
House of Representatives.
Sir:
Reference is again made to your letter of December 7th, enclosing one addressed to you by the Robinson Publishing Company, at Hathboro, Pa., in which request was made for the establishment of railway post office car service on the Rapid Transit Company's line between Doylestown and Philadelphia.

The matter has been looked into and it is thought that the benefit to be derived would not be sufficient to warrant the establishment of such service. There is now service in operation on the electric car line between Doylestown and Willow Grove, Pa., where the mails are carried in closed pouches.

The granting of the request presented would involve the establishment of additional service on the electric car line from Willow Grove to Philadelphia, a distance of from sixteen to eighteen miles, the authorization of car space over the entire line from Doylestown to Philadelphia, and the appointment of a railway postal clerk at a salary of $1100 per annum to handle the mail.

The larger post offices that would be served are now furnished with all necessary service by existing railway post office service, and any additional supply which might be desirable could be provided by additional pouches on other trains on the same line. The post office at Hathboro is supplied by the New Hope and Philadelphia railway post office, on which there are two railway post office trains each way daily except Sunday, and in addition to these there are four local trains in both directions which could be utilized for closed pouch service if needed; in fact some of these trains are now being so used.

A count has been made of the mail now sent and received by the post office on the electric line between Doylestown and Willow Grove, and the amount of mail is found to be insufficient to call for the establishment of railway post office car service.

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH STEWART,
Second Assistant Postmaster General.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION

Interest Growing—Eighteen New Members Added—Total 72—The Proceedings—Delegates Present.

The joint meeting of the Hatboro Business Men's Association and the committees sent from the Roslyn and Willow Grove Associations and a delegation of citizens from Ivyland and Haterville crowded the meeting room at Town hall to overflowing on Thursday night.

The meeting was called to order at eight o'clock by Vice President Flavel, who presided until nine o'clock, when Dr. Reading, president, took the chair. Secretary Cornell read the minutes and Dr. Jones welcomed the guests in a short speech.

The visitors were then asked to give their ideas as to their wants in the different communities for better railroad service, as this joint meeting was called for the express purpose of getting the views of all residents living along the Northeast railway from Glenside to Ivyland.

George W. Quicker, of the Willow Grove Association, said Willow Grove needed most a train for the business men leaving the Terminal at six minutes after six as the 5:07 was too early and the 6:40 too late.

William Hobbsack, William Bodey, Joseph A. Addis and James Cornell, of Ivyland, spoke as to the wants of their borough from the railroad. Their chief endeavor was to get a mid-night train, as the last train into Ivyland leaves the city at 6:40, and they have to either make a long drive to their town except by the wagon roads, which have been nearly impassable on account of the mud and snow this winter.

L. J. Bordo, of the Roslyn Association, gave most interesting talk, as to what they had accomplished and what they hope to accomplish from the railroad. They ask for a train about six o'clock in the evening, a later one at about 9 o'clock and a mid-night train for theatre goers. Mr. Bordo's speech greatly stirred the backbone of all those in attendance as it was his opinion that by the united efforts of the different associations a great deal could be accomplished.

At this point, Alfred C. Young, of the Hatboro Association, reported having had a conference with a prominent Philadelphia attorney, whose services he required in presenting the Hatboro petition to the railroad and if necessary to the Board of Commissioners, in improving the railroad routes to give any better accommodation.

President Young appointed the following gentlemen, who will be known as the Public Service Committee: Charles Decker, of Hatboro, and C. C. Moore. A motion was then made that the newly appointed committee be authorized to represent the association in all matters pertaining to the railroad and to report to the meeting next Thursday.

The president also appointed the new board of directors of the association, C. J. Stover, Dr. Charles M. Selzer, Dr. J. B. Carroll, W. W. Wilgus and George C. Young.

Secretary Cornell read communications from the Roslyn Association contemplating Hatboro on the former line, and a communication was read from J. Howard Mitchell, in which he joined the association and mentioned some needed improvements, which will be taken up later.

President Young of the Publicity Committee, reported on the proposed eight-page folder that is to be gotten out for the use of all residents of Hatboro, as both a residential town and a suitable place for the establishment of a business center. Some 5,000 of these folders were ordered printed. They are to be placed in the hands of all members and mailed to them by the parties who have letters written.

The membership is increasing rapidly and it looks now as if the number would reach 100, as 18 new members were taken in at this meeting, totaling 72. It was decided to hold open the charter until the next regular meeting, which would be held in the month of March. All those joining before would be regarded as charter members.

The new members elected at this meeting are: F. C. Stockdale, J. Walter Thomas, John S. Ledy, H. Ralph Wilson, J. Howard Mitchell, Jacob Huff, W. Sheldon, Daniel Bray, A. H. Walton, Richard Chapman, Edwin H. Friday, Walter C. DeCoursey, Dr. J. B. Carroll, Dr. C. O. Dager, J. R. Andrews, John Hart, Rev. J. P. Shook, Dr. William Hannum.

Treasurer William F. Wilson reported over $100 in hand. Resolutions thanking the delegates from visiting associations and for their attendance were passed and the enthusiasm on all sides was very apparent.

RAISED $200 BY SUPPER.

A supper was given by the ladies of the Baptist church, in the lecture room of the church last Friday evening. About three hundred persons were served. The room was prettily decorated. An arch-way was placed in front of the Sunday school door, in the room, and was covered with honey-suckle greens and pink paper roses hung from all parts of it, making a very pretty bower. From one side of the room to the other, along the ceiling, were many extra lights, placed by Paul Colby, which added very much to the appearance of the room, roses and greens hung from the ropes on which these lights were, pink leaves were placed around some of the bulbs. Two matrons, with their aids, were at each supper table. The matrons were dressed in black with white kerchiefs and powdered hair, while the girls were dressed in white, some with kerchiefs and powdered hair. The people who had charge of the cake, candy and fancy tables, as well as the post-office, were kept quite busy. The gross receipts will be about $200.

A letter was received from George W. Elkins, Jr., stating that if it met the approval of the club, he would give them a silver cup to be raced for the coming season in the free-for-all class. Cup to be won by the same horse in two different races before it becomes the property of any one. The cup will be accepted thankfully.

MAN FOUND DROWNED

Washington R. Taussig, While Drunk, Fell into Race and Perished.
Washington R. Taussig, who had been employed at the chemical works, at the former Pulmor mill, was found drowned in the tall race last Monday morning. Taussig was last seen alive about eleven o'clock on Saturday night, when he left the home of Charles Snyder nearby, saying that he was going to the mill. He was intoxicated at that time.

When Taussig did not report for work on Monday morning, search was made for him and his body was found in the race that runs under the mill. It is boxed in with perpendicular walls about eight feet deep and contained about one foot of water. It is supposed that Taussig fell into this race soon after leaving Snyder's house and in his helpless condition was unable to get out. Overcome by exposure and cold he perished miserably sometime before morning.

Very little is known of Taussig, who was a comparative newcomer in this locality. When the body was found Corner King was notified and came to Hatboro later on Monday. After investigation he found the above facts. The body was turned over to Undertaker Walton. His age was about 56 years. He was a leather worker and held the position of stoker.

Mr. Wilgus allows the public to cross his property making a short cut to the station and the walk has been rather muddy this winter. The cinders will eliminate this.

An automobile hearse owned by Fithian S. Simmons, an undertaker of 369 Market street, Camden, caught fire at limekiln pile and Washington lane, Pittsville, last Monday afternoon, while conveying a body to the Philadelphia Crematory, on East Washington lane.

Pedestrians first noticed the flames beneath the machine, and notified the chauffeur. Considerable difficulty was experienced before the body was taken out of the car. Blood Humors

It is important that you should now rid your blood of those impure, poisonous, effete matters that have accumulated in it during the winter. The secret of the unequalled and really wonderful success of

as a remedy for Blood Humors is the fact that it combines, not simply sarsaparilla, but the utmost remedial values of more than twenty ingredients—Roses, Barks and Herbs—known to have extraordinary efficacy in purifying the blood and building up the whole system. There is no real substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla, no "just as good" medicine. Get Hood's today, in liquid form or tablets called Sarsabath.

Wanger's Federal Automobile Bill.

Congressman Wanger introduced a bill in the House of Representatives providing for the Federal control of automobiles, which, should it become a law, will mean that the owner of an automobile upon registration and upon the licensing of the operator, may drive his car from one state to another without securing a separate license. This is made possible by regarding the automobile owners as engaged in interstate commerce. It is the result of careful study and consideration of a subcommittee on Interstate Commerce, of which Mr. Wanger is chairman.

In a number of Norristown churches Boy Scouts have organized, and there is a movement on foot to organize all into one band.

PICTURES PRESENTED.

The Willow Grove—Arlington Woman's Christian Temperance Union and had charge of the service in the Methodist church of Willow Grove on Sunday evening, and the program presented proved very interesting.

Mrs. Annie Baum, president of the organization, presided over the meeting, and Mrs. William Craven, the union's organist, had charge of the music. Special features of the program were, a vocal duet by the Misses Mabel and Hester Denton; piano solo, by Miss Grace Quigley; a paper, "The History and Object of the Local W. C. T. U." by Mrs. J. Dyer Moyer, and an address by Rev. Hoffman, descriptive of Miss Frances Willard.

The concluding feature of the program was the presentation by the union of two framed pictures of Miss Willard to the High schools of Willow Grove and Arlington. Messrs. Detweiler and Flack, supervising principals of the schools, accepted them with appropriate remarks.

This week there appears in 250 cars of the Rapid Transit Company, namely the 4th and 5th street, Glen side and Hattboro and Doylestown cars, the following card: "Who is a Mocker, Strong Drink is Raging, and Who severs is Deceived thereby is Not Wise." The Willow Grove—Arlington Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The March meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held on next Tuesday afternoon at half past two o'clock, at the home of Mrs. W. A. Boucher, on Horace avenue, Arlington. It is hoped there will be a large attendance of members, as the newly drafted constitution will be read and the articles amended at this meeting. The topic of the afternoon "Political Action a Necessity" will be discussed by Mrs. Annie Baum.

CARL—WILLOW GROVE.

Edward Carl, a trolley car conductor, of Willow Grove, formerly of Doylestown, and Miss Angeline Worthington, of near Dark Hollow, Buckingham township, were married at "Rose Lawn," Willow Grove, on Sunday, February 19, 1911. The officiating clergyman, Rev. J. B. Krewson, Wednesday morning. The bride was escorted by her personal friends of the bride couple.

Willow Grove M. E. church, Sunday, February 26, 1911, 10:30, sermon by the minister; 2:30, Sunday school; 7:00 Epworth League; 7:45, sermon to Watchmen; 8:30, Improvised Order of Red Men.

There is a demand for moderate rent houses through this section. Houses for the working class will be scarce. However there is a supply of cheap houses usually to be had at Hattboro, which is convenient for trolley employees.

George W. Wynkoop, Jr. superintendent of Willow Grove Park, expects to be about in a few days, after being held up for the past three weeks from injury to his leg, sustained by a fall while superintending some work in one of the amusements.

The work of demolishing the ferris wheel by R. B. Wenner and force is going on rapidly. On Friday of last week, blasts were placed under the foundation and the wheel, toppled over. This was a big undertaking as the steel weighed many tons and was built strongly of steel. The wheel is not to be erected in any other park, but to be simply scrapped, to be shipped away. This wheel was never a paying venture, it was erected by people not associated with the trolley park and after purchased by the Transit Company was only operated one season. It did not pay and was afterward used simply for decoration. It required a considerable amount of power to drive it as it was not well balanced. This was also drawback to its use from a profitable end.

Three Tuns—Maple Glen

C. Norman Beas, of Edge Hill, visited at Thomas P. Conard's this week.

Miss Elsie MacHugh, of Fox Chase, was the guest of Miss Edythe M. Mann on Sunday.

Mrs. Walter Graham, of Philadelphia, has been spending some time at the home of Joseph H. Summers.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Simmers attended the funeral of the latter's sister, in Philadelphia, on Tuesday.

An important meeting of the Aid Society of Three Tuns Baptist Mission was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Mann, on Saturday evening. After adjournment a communion supper contest was enjoyed by all.

A minstrel and comedy entertainment will be given by the Aid Society of Three Tuns Baptist Mission, in Odd Fellows' Hall, Springhouse, on Saturday evening, March 18. A large attendance is expected as the proceeds are to go toward a fund to admit a blind lady to a home.

The road to success is embellished with mighty few sign posts.

LOCAL HOMES OF WASHINGTON

Various Colonial Houses, Which Were Occupied by the Commander-in-Chief of the American Forces During the Revolutionary War.

Thanks to the thoroughness and skill of the workmen of the colonial era, nearly all of the buildings that served as General Washington's headquarters during the campaigns round about Philadelphia in 1777 and 1778 are still standing and constitute precious memorials of the American Revolution. These old houses recall not only the hope and dejection, the planning and sagacity of the American leader, but they also tell of his love for the domestic life of even amid the horrors of war. Almost invariably the establishments in which the commander-in-chief of the American forces lived during the Revolutionary War, are situated in the counties adjoining Philadelphia—Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Delaware—a sure proof of the fact that the Revolutionary War was a war of the people, and that the people were the backbone of the Revolution.

Washington usually took possession of two rooms, one for his bed chamber and the other for his office and living room. He endeavored to cause a minimum of inconvenience to the regular occupants of the house, and to the best of his ability he endeavored to have his meals prepared by his own negro cook and served in his apartments. Sometimes, when the stay was prolonged, as at Valley Forge, Mrs. Washington joined the regular help, but she made the conditions more homelike.

With but a few exceptions, Washington's headquarters in Pennsylvania are situated in the counties adjoining Philadelphia—Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Delaware—a sure proof of the fact that the Revolutionary War was a war of the people, and that the people were the backbone of the Revolution.

The Old York road, an ancient highway from Philadelphia to New York, was especially a place of importance. Along this road, 20 miles north of Philadelphia near the Neshaunung river, in the county of Bucks, is the building where the commander-in-chief made his first headquarters after the army entered Pennsylvania in the summer of 1777 to protect Philadelphia from the British. In the stone farmhouse at this place Washington remained for a short time, and the army being encamped nearby. Here it was that the Marquis de Lafayette and Count Pulaski, who had come from WASHINGTON.

Europe to aid the Americans, joined the army and attended the first council of war. In the front wall of this house is a bronze tablet erected by the Bucks County Historical Society, telling of Washington's occupancy. The farm has recently been purchased by Dr. Sherman Robbins, who will take possession this spring.

Within the limits of Philadelphia, at Wayne Junction, and close to the Old York road is "Stenton," where the commander-in-chief of the army for a short time after the army left the camp along the Neshaunung and marched to engage the British, who had landed at the head of Chesapeake Bay. "Stenton" had been the home of James Logan, the learned secretary of the British, who for many years was the actual head of the government in Pennsylvania. In this mansion, which Logan built in 1777, he had an extensive library and here he wrote many treatises on philosophy, history, astronomy and other subjects. When the British gained possession of Philadelphia, General Howe for a time had his headquarters in "Stenton." The house is now in the care of the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames.

The farmhouse from which Washington directed the battle of Brandywine on September 26, 1777, is also preserved. It is about 25 miles south of Philadelphia, near the village of Chad's Ford. After the defeat at Brandywine the Americans retired to Chester on the Delaware River, below Philadelphia, and Washington's headquarters were in the Red Bank tavern now known as the Washington House. In his room there at midnight he wrote his report of the battle and transmitted it to Congress.

West of Philadelphia, in Montgomery county, are several buildings that Washington occupied after the battle of Brandywine. One of the most interesting is the home of the late Schwenkville in the Perkiomen Valley, now the home of the former Governor James W. Penn. These buildings were returned to the State by the State of Pennsylvania in 1877, and are now in the possession of the National Park Service. The kitchen, built with walls two feet thick, serves as

HOW I WAS CURED OF SCROFULA

"I was in a very bad condition with scrofulous swellings round my neck. It started with a bunch on the side of my neck and it kept growing until the whole side of my face was swollen.

"I had tried everything in the shape of medicines for five years. I had gone under an operation in one of the hospitals in Boston and had them cut out. I had thirty little tubular glands taken from back of my ear down my shoulder. After the cuts healed over they started to come again and worse than before.

"After suffering so much I thought I would try Pinkham's Blood Purifier and before I had taken two bottles there was a great change in the swellings. I continued its use and to-day I am a well woman Every word of this is true.

"I cannot speak too highly in praise of Pinkham's Blood Purifier."

—Mrs. W. H. HAYNES, 38 Adams Avenue, Everett, Mass.

The tendency to Scrofula seems to be hereditary and it is hard to overcome. It may lie dormant for years, and then break out anew from time to time.

The only known remedy for Scrofula is to keep the blood pure and rich by the use of a good blood purifier. It may require long treatment, but Mrs. Haynes found that Pinkham's Blood Purifier cured her of this dreadful disease, after all other means had failed.

Pinkham's Blood Purifier is equally as good for all diseases emanating from impure, impoverished blood, and is the best Spring medicine known. People will find the Blood Purifier just as reliable a remedy as the women of the world have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Unequalled—satisfying and dependable.

the present owner's "den." It is furnished somewhat as it was in Revolutionary times. The wide fireplace and the turnspit are there, candlesticks are on the mantel, and the old-fashioned rag carpet covers the floor and several old rifles stand in the corner. Ancient kitchen utensils are also seen, including waffle iron, bread bowls, a huge pewter dish for roast pig. Over the fireplace is a stanza from a poem which Theodore Winthrop wrote describing a Revolutionary incident on the Pennsylvania farm. The stanza quotes Washington's approval of the heroic exploits of a band of patriots led by a soldier named Skerrett in these words:

"Skerrett, my lad, thou art a trump, The ace of all my rackets; Come into Pennypacker's mill And share my applejack."

When the army again moved toward Philadelphia, Peter Wentz's house, in Worcester, served as Washington's headquarters from October 16 to October 22, 1777. The house still shows signs of the good taste exercised in its construction. The first member of the Wentz family who settled in Worcester amassed a fortune on the sea, and his wealth was used to buy a magnificent house. Whatever the father's reputation, the house was a masterpiece. In 1778, was evidently a thoroughly pious man, for he placed a datestone in the wall bearing this dedication:

"Iest, omnia in meum Haus, Weige münneher heraus; Komm mit deilich Gnadengut Und mein' mein' Feil in Fried."

The verse is translated thus: Jesus, come into my house, And for me, my dear, my dear, Come with all thy grace and blessing.

And bring peace unto my soul. From October 31 to November 2, the army having moved several miles nearer to Philadelphia, Washington's headquarters were in the house of James Morris, in Whitpain township, near the present borough of Ambler, Montgomery county. "Dawesfield" remains in the possession of the family that built it.

James Morris, a grandnephew of James Morris, being the present owner. One of the treasures of the house is the bedstead in which Washington slept.

Whitemarsh, still nearer to Philadelphia, became the headquarters of the camp from November 2 to December 11. The headquarters building is a farmhouse situated in a rather isolated spot near Camp Hill Station and now owned by Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer. Because of the continuity of the American camp to the British lines, incidents tinged sometimes with heroism and sometimes with romance occurred almost daily during the encampment at Whitemarsh. Bold American patriots stole into the city by night to warn the British of the encampment, and they had long been separated. Throughout the territory between the surplus of Allen McLane and his daring horsemen rode back and forth, making forays into the enemy's lines. That night the British outpost on the verge of nervous prostration. To Washington's headquarters at Whitemarsh, Lydia Darrah came to be ordered by the authority of the British as an emissary to the city. She had been planned whereby it was expected to capture the whole army. Lydia Darrah was a Quakeress who lived in Philadelphia. In her home several British officers were quartered. Listening at a keyhole, she overheard the officers discussing plans to trap Washington and his men. At sunrise the next morning she set out on foot for the American camp, and after a journey of ten miles delivered her information to Washington. As a result, when the British advanced a few days later to make the proposed attack, they found the Americans so well entrenched that the Redcoats returned to the city without venturing a battle.

Of all the Washington's headquarters about Philadelphia, the one at Valley Forge attracts the widest attention because of the sufferings of the army during the winter of 1777-78. This is now the property of the State.

Every week hundreds of visitors, many of whom come from distant points, inspect the headquarters, viewing all where Washington hid his important papers, the quaint log kitchen, which still remains while he was there, and the various relics and pictures on exhibition in the house and the times that tried men's souls.

The future of the Valley Forge headquarters is secure. But the preservation of other headquarters in the vicinity of Philadelphia depends wholly upon the public spirit of their respective owners, who thus far have shown commendable forethought in caring for these valuable relics of the Revolution. The rage for "improvements" has not been allowed to ruin the old structures of their charm, and they will endure for many years, constituting shrines of patriotism for future generations.

TELS FARMERS HOW TO SELL PRODUCE

For Philadelphia, Say Experts—They Recommend Five Cents per Quart to Farmers and Want Cleaner and More Sanitary Conditions at Both Ends of the Line—Below Will be Found the Recommendations.

A board of experts has been looking into the milk supply of Philadelphia and has made several recommendations that will be exceedingly expensive to carry through.

The experts say that much of the milk supplied to the city consumer is bad and blame both the dairyman and the retailer for its faults.

Director Neff, of the Health Department, after considering the report of the experts makes the following recommendations to the mayor:

"Dear Sir—I acknowledge receipt of the report submitted to your Honor by the Milk Commission of Philadelphia and shall endeavor, in as far as possible, to mention the most salient points therein. The report is an excellent one, and shows the greatest care in studying the many details in connection with the complex problems confronting the commission, whose recommendations, with but few exceptions, meet with my hearty approval, and if carried out, would largely reduce infant mortality and also decrease the mortality from typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever and tuberculosis.

"The commission has called attention to the unsanitary conditions and inadequate inspection of the milk supply at the dairy farms, receiving stations, receiving platforms, and of the transportation companies, pasteurizing and bottling plants, large and small dealers, stores and restaurants. Ninety-three thousand one hundred dollars, of which $55,000 would be paid by the State, would be required to put their suggestions in force. This does not include money required for necessary clerks, furniture, and stationery for the Division of Milk. Additional legislation will also be necessary. This sum would amount to four-hundredths of one mill per quart of milk consumed in the city.

"The commission states that there are serious defects of construction and operation in all the pasteurizing and bottling plants of Philadelphia, and recommends that the municipality erect and maintain pasteurizing plants and milk stations at which milk to be sold to the poor at a very low cost.

"They recommend that the sanitary inspection of dairy farms in Pennsylvania, outside of Philadelphia, be transferred by legislation, from the State Department of Health to the Live Stock Sanitary Board. The necessary inspectors for this work would cost $45,100, which includes salaries and traveling expenses, one-half of which should be defrayed by the city and the other half by the State, respectively. This can be done in many ways, by the appearance of the farm, of the wagons, used for hauling products to the city, and by the appearance of the farmer himself.

"During the dormant season is the time to prune your trees if you wish to promote their growth," says Prof. Surface, State Zoologist of Pennsylvania. He further adds that the first treatment of a tree infested with San Jose scale, or any other serious pest, should be to prune in accordance with the severity of the injury. "It makes no difference what has caused the damage to the tree, it should be laid down to the general rule to prune back the top in accordance with the amount of injury from which the tree has suffered. When a tree has been attacked by scale it is injured much worse than its outward appearance would indicate, and the pruning should consequently be very severe."

"They have stated that the dairyman cannot produce milk under sanitary conditions at the price now received, and recommended that he be paid five cents per quart, which, they estimate, will increase the cost to the consumer one cent per quart.

"They recommend that milk shall be shipped in the evening and delivered to the consumer the following morning. This would necessitate the pasteurization, bottling and handling of milk by the dealer during the night hours.

"They suggest improvements in the cans and lids; also, that the lids be sealed.

"They advise that all milk from cows that have not been subjected to tuberculin test must be pasteurized. They present a number of details in reference to standardization, commercially and bacteriologically; the question of handling loose milk, and other matters that have already been favorably considered by the Board of Health of Philadelphia, and will be adopted as soon as practicable.

"To accomplish results the producer must be educated as to the necessity of the reforms suggested, which can be accomplished by the farm inspectors, and if the recommendations can be carried out, Philadelphia, which in a few years, will have as good a milk supply as any city in the United States. Therefore, I ask your support in procuring the necessary legislation and appropriations to make this proposed system effective. The milk division, as at present constituted, is thoroughly inadequate to cope with the situation. Very respectfully yours,

JOSEPH S. NEFF,
"Director Public Safety."

O. W. Barnes, who has successfully managed H. E. Drayton's farm, the Office, at Pottsville, the past five years has resigned and will remove to New Hampshire and manage Hill Crest farm, at Lakeport, breeding and importing Jerseys and Berksheires.

the purpose of economy of spraying material, and thoroughness of work, it is important for the pruning to be completed before the spraying is undertaken. Grape vines should be pruned very closely leaving many short stubs. This should be done soon, or before the sap starts to flow, but pruning after the sap starts, causing the vines to "bleed," is not such a serious matter as one would suppose. It really results in no serious injury. All old raspberry and blackberry canes should be cut out and burned. Gooseberry and currant stalks over three years old should be pruned out. The cuttings from grape, gooseberries, currants and quince can be planted in the ground, and used to grow others if desired. To do this they should be well cultivated, in moist fertile soil.

HOW TO MAKE A GRAPE VINE GROW.

A prominent editor in Pennsylvania wrote to State Zoologist Surface, at Harrisburg, stating that his grape vine was making but little growth, and that he desired to learn how to make it more thrifty. The reply of Prof. Surface was as follows:

To stimulate the growth of your grape vine, it is well to prune it back, and then fertilize it well with a nitrogen fertilizer, such as old stable manure, or dressing from the poultry house, or scatter a handful of nitrate of soda in the ground around it once a month after the buds burst. The poultry house, or scatter a handful of nitrate of soda in the ground around it once a month after the buds burst. The poultry house, or scatter a handful of nitrate of soda in the ground around it once a month after the buds burst.

used it with such satisfactory results that I sent for two large bottles, and I have up to this time used about half a 50 cent bottle with splendid success."—JAMES HYDE, Beebe, White County, Ark.
